

Mark Campbell

As an established strategic thought leader, he emphasizes medical innovation and the future of healthcare. He is a proven game-changer with an expertise in developing individualized medical platforms and the overall financial efficiencies of our clients and representatives.

He graduated with a B.S. in Kinesiology from the University of Michigan. During that time, he was a member of the 1997 National Championship football team and was honored with the Bob Ufer Award, which is appointed to the athlete that best demonstrate the characteristics of a quality individual and teammate. Mark was an undrafted free agent and long shot to make an NFL team. He went on to play ten years in the NFL with the the Cleveland Browns, Buffalo Bills, and New Orleans Saints. He was an active member of the NFLPA, the player's union association, and represented his colleagues in negotiations with NFL team owners and their representatives. In his post-football career, Mark transitioned to the healthcare industry and brings a game-changing and forward-thinking approach to the industry.

Mark resides in Rochester, MI with his wife (Michell) and their three children (Caden, Evan, and Case). He enjoys golfing, skiing, coaching, and playing with their kids. He remains focused working with his non-profit organization, Forward Pass, and sits on the Advisory Board of the ChadTough Foundation.
